LOCATION.

The healthfulness and railroad facilities of Raleigh eminently adapt it to become the great educational centre of the State. It affords to young ladies of the Eastern part of the State and their parents, a pleasant Summer resort, while those from the Western part can remain here during the year without apprehension of danger incidental to malarial regions. Its telegraphic communications put it in close sympathy with all parts of the State.

Its church privileges and advantages of public lectures and concerts are to be considered by those having daughters to educate.

Edifice, Grounds, &c.

Four large and imposing buildings furnish ample accommodation for a large Boarding and Day School. The main central building, devoted exclusively to the Boarding Department, measures 68x73. Each of the three stories is supplied with an abundance of water for the water-closets and bathing rooms.

The Chapel and Recitation Building affords an elegant Hall and Recitation Rooms.

The Art and Music Building contains a Library and Art room, two Music recitation rooms, and nine Practice rooms.

Realizing that physical training is of first importance in a liberal education, we have incurred considerable expense in the erection of a Gymnasium building, 60x20 feet, to be supplied with a gymnastic outfit, which will give variety and pleasure to exercise. Inclemency of the weather can thus never interfere with the daily exercise required of every pupil.

Efforts are now making for the erection of a Conservatory, that will assist much in the study of Botany.

Course of Study.

Primary & Intermediate Departments.

These Departments, by laying such a foundation as enables the student to prosecute successfully the Collegiate Course, supply a long felt want. Teachers of experience and skill have been secured for them; and to add to their efficiency, the classes in the Primary Department will recite frequently to the Principal and Associate Principal.

Collegiate Department.

Believing that the Beautiful can be attained only through the True, we have prescribed the same disciplinary studies as are afforded young men in first class male colleges. The correctness of this position is shown by the success of other Institutions aiming at the higher culture of woman.

ENGLISH.

Special effort will be made both by study of its principles and by an intimate acquaintance with its classics, to acquire an accurate and practical knowledge of English, which heretofore has received too little attention at the hands of educators. Frequent written exercises are required both to give facility of expression and cultivate habits of accurate thought.

LATIN.

While we recognize the aid of an acquaintance with Latin in enabling students more thoroughly to understand the structure of their vernacular, and to acquire a knowledge of the derivation and meaning of English words, we insist on its study for a higher purpose—as affording the highest mental discipline. To secure this end, the discriminating power of the mind is exercised in Syntax, and Etymology as recently developed by the researches in the field of Comparative Philology. Daily exercises in translating English into Latin call attention to the idioms of both languages. Varied and extensive readings of the classics contribute to the formation of correct taste and power of expression. Throughout the whole course attention is given to Roman History, Literature, Mythology, and Antiquities.

MODERN LANGUAGES.

FRENCH.

French is prosecuted in the same manner as Latin—with much stress on correctness of pronunciation.

GERMAN.

The importance of a more thorough study of German is shown by its fine literature, the continually increasing German element among us, and its relation to our own language.

MATHEMATICS.

Mathematics is taught so as to induce fixedness of attention and power of analysis. Frequent original problems develop independence of thought and beget skill in the use of mathematical principles. Believing that the minds of females require, for disciplinary purposes, the same extent and thoroughness of its mathematical course as those of males, we do not think it wise to abridge the course as prescribed in first class male colleges.

NATURAL SCIENCES.

The imperative demands of the age and their practical utility warrant the prominence given to Natural Sciences. Chemistry is taught by text-books, lectures, and experiments before the class with a complete and elaborate apparatus. In the Laboratory, habits of close observation and care are acquired by the course of Qualitative Analysis which each student is required to complete for herself. We attach importance to this science not only as a prerequisite to a knowledge of the others, but also on account of its specially practical bearing upon the domestic duties of woman.

PHYSICS.

Rigorous demonstrations of the laws of Physics, involving familiarity with the principles of Geometry and Analytics, are required. The apparatus for Physics will afford unusual facilities for conducting the experiments.

ASTRONOMY.

In Astronomy the same course is pursued, as in Physics, of applying mathematical principles to its elucidation: and as much attention is given to Physical Astronomy as its importance demands.

MINEROLOGY AND GEOLOGY.

In Mineralogy and Geology a practical knowledge of minerals is obtained by the actual handling of them, and by classification by the use of the ordinary reägents and blow-pipe. We avail ourselves of the advantages afforded by the N. C. Geological Museum. The classes in Geology will be taken on excursions to examine strata as often as convenient.

MORAL PHILOSOPHY.

The course consists of recitation of portions of the text-books in connection with informal discussions with the class, that will bring sharply before their minds the fundamental principles of the science. Frequent essays are assigned on subjects taught in the course, to apply the principles learned.

In logic, the best specimens of reasoning will be examined and fallacies detected according to the laws of the science.

Examinaton.

Written examinations are held at the close of each session, and are a test of proficiency, three-fourth of the values of the questions being required of candidates for promotion from one class to another.

Art Department.

Drawing and Painting.

An effort will be made to create the same enthusiasm in Drawing as exists in European and Northern Schools. Feeling assured that this long neglected branch of study is capable of cultivating the power of observation, the taste, and the inventive faculty, we have exerted ourselves to offer unusual advantages, by securing a competent teacher from the celebrated school of Art and Design, Cooper Institute, New York City. This skillful artist will teach according to the methods recently adopted in the Northern Schools, in which the principles of shades, shadows and perspective are applied to Drawing, thus securing scientific accuracy. As a special inducement for the youngest pupils, who are likely to be most benefitted by it, to take up this study, the charges have been reduced one half for the Primary Department. The elegant and spacious Art gallery will contribute much to our design in making Drawing a prominent feature in our system. The introduction of the study of this branch will not be an additional burden on the student, as it is embraced eagerly as a recreation.

Music.

After careful investigation of the claims of the many applicants for the Professorship of Music, in which we availed ourselves of the information acquired by a visit to the New England and New York Conservatories of Music, we can say advisedly that we have secured the best available skill in this department. The Professor in charge of it is Dr. L. Von Meyerhoff, of Vienna, a pupil of Rubinstein, well known in Charlotte, where he has successfully taught for the last year in the Charlotte Female Institute. He has also considerable power as a vocalist. For the purpose of improving our congregational singing, and to excite a greater interest in the cultivation of the vocal powers among the pupils generally, we have secured an accomplished vocalist of long experience. The teacher of vocal music will also give instruction on the Guitar.

In answer to the repeated inquiries for pianos, we have made arrangements with the Piano Manufacturers who supply us, to furnish our patrons with first class instruments at greatly reduced prices.

The Boarding Department

Is under the personal supervision of the Principal. The table is supplied with an abundance of well served food; and we earnestly advise parents against the sending of boxes of edibles, as the ill-timed use of these is often a source of sickness.

The dormitories are spacious, comfortably furnished, and well ventilated.

Suitable provision is made for the proper care and treatment of the sick. In cases of serious illness, the best medical skill of the city is procured, and parents promptly notified.

The young ladies are strictly prohibited from corresponding with young men, or receiving attention from them. The Senior Class, however, is allowed to have several receptions during their last school year. The pupils are required to keep their rooms in perfect order, to retire and rise promptly at a given hour, and to observe a lady-like deportment at all times. As the most effectual way of accomplishing this last object, we have teachers of refined and elegant manners, who will reprove any violation of good manners and give necessary instruction for discharging their social duties and cultivating their sense of propriety.

They will provide themselves with towels, napkins, one pair of sheets, and one pair of pillow-cases.

Moral and Religious Education.

The moral and religious education of our pupils is of paramount importance with us. To secure this there are weekly recitations on some book of the Bible in connection with Angus' Hand-book. They are required to attend daily prayers in the Chapel, Sunday School and Divine Services on Sunday in the churches designated by parents.

Clio Society.

The Clio Society, formerly connected with Oxford Female College, kindly presented to a Society here of the same name its Hall furniture and Library of 1,000 volumes.

The Library room will be supplied with choice periodicals and magazines, which the young ladies are encouraged to read daily.

The friends of the School would confer a favor on the Society, by presenting it with books or funds for the purchase of books.

Uniform.

To promote enconomy and, at the same time, to secure tastefulness of dress, the pupils will be required to wear a prescribed uniform on dress occasions. This uniform consists of one dress of brown Alpaca for Winter; and for Summer two dresses, one of gray leno, the other of lawn. A good article of these materials can be purchased for fifty cents per yard, which is the limit allowed.

For ordinary wear neat calico dresses are used.

Notwithstanding the losses of the Ætna, she has

Over Eighteen Million Dollars of Assets,

with which to meet future losses. Is there any other Company in the country which can show such a fair exhibit? It is no presumption, or extravagant assertion to say that the Ætna has paid more money to the citizens of the State than all other Life Companies combined, now doing business here. And we are pleased to announce that the Old Volcano is still going ahead with unparalleled success in all the States. Those who want to leave a certainty to their families, should seek first to secure a policy in the Ætna. Address W. H. CROW, Gen. Agt, Raleigh, N. C.
